J. H. Bagby In Office As Mayor

Accepts Gavel From A. H. Wilks, Retiring Mayor; Council Democratic

A. H. Wilks, Republican, retiring as mayor of Sedalia Monday night, at a regular Council meeting, handed the gavel to his successor, Julian H. Bagby, Democrat, who had served as mayor for seven years prior to Mr. Wilks' election four years ago.

Taking office with Mr. Bagby were four Democratic Councilmen and five other city elective officers. The Councilmen are Virgil Corson, first ward, Elmer Summers, second ward, John Taylor, third ward and Cline Cain, fourth ward, who with the four aldermen who retain office for another year form an entire Democratic Council.

Flowers Are Presented

Numerous bouquets of flowers were presented the mayor and councilmen, also a rosebud, given by the Democratic committee was presented by the chairman, D. Kelly Scruton, to each retiring Councilman.

The Council chamber was filled with spectators, friends of both the retiring officers as well as the incoming councilmen. After the session many crowded around the desks to extend good wishes to the mayor and aldermen.

The oath of office was first taken by Mayor Bagby, then the incoming aldermen, who were followed by Mrs. George Boothe, treasurer; Ed Gorman, assessor; W. E. Scotten, police judge; Anson Fennell, chief of police; W. F. Brown, attorney.

On motion of Virgil Carson the newly organized Council elected Gil Sublett, first ward, president pro tem, and it becomes his duty to serve as presiding officer in the absence of the mayor.

Two Hurt When Autos Collide

Edgar Wells, 210 West Seventh street and Jack Raeber, 2514 East Broadway, received injuries not believed to be serious when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by another car driven by Norman Van Tassel of Warsaw on West Highway 50 at Gasoline Alley Monday afternoon. The accident occurred as the car driven by Wells turned left into a filling station and the Van Tassel car, headed east, crashed into the side of the vehicle.

Both motor vehicles were badly damaged.

Wells appeared to be suffering from fractured ribs and bruises. He was treated by Dr. E. C. Snavely. Raeber received a chest injury and bruises. X-ray pictures are being taken to determine if he received any broken bones. Dr. D. P. Dyer attended Mr. Raeber.

Mrs. Van Tassel received cuts on both knees.

State highway patrol Sergeant Fred Rodecker and Trooper Pete Stohr conducted an investigation.

Merry-Go-Round

by Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON, April 16—It is no secret that what worries the war plans divisions of the army and navy is the fact that future atomic bombs can be smuggled into the United States in suitcases. This is a known possibility that the American public should always keep in mind.

In fact, the probable warfare of the future will consist of smuggling 20 suitcases with 20 atomic bombs into 20 key cities of the USA. Then the enemy would notify Washington that unless it yielded on certain points by such and such a deadline, these 20 cities would be blown to bits.

Both the army and navy necessarily have studied this possibility most carefully. That is their job and higher-ups who are frank privately agree that future intelligence regarding foreign nations is all-important—also that the day is looming when big land armies and battleships may become as old fashioned as horse cavalry.

In the last few days, however, congress has made two moves entirely out of keeping with the trend of modern warfare.

First, the house appropriations committee wiped out the state department's appropriation for "intelligence" in other words the unit which studies what other nations are doing. Second, the house military affairs committee has voted to continue peacetime military conscription for the first time in history.

Continuation of the draft is, of course, a very debatable subject. However, few people—except certain congressional mousiebacks—would deny the state department money to carry on "intelligence" abroad.

The amount it requested was only $4,150,326, compared with hundreds of millions spent for "intelligence" in wartime. What some key congressmen don't seem to realize is that money spent for intelligence after a war starts is like building a hospital after a smallpox epidemic is in full swing. Like modern vaccination, it is intelligence before a war starts which really counts.

Note—A lot of people are wondering what's happened to Democratic Representative Louis Rabaut of Grosse Pointe Park, Michigan, hitherto considered an able congressman. He is the subcommittee chairman who insisted on cutting the heart out of the state department appropriations bill.

Two Good Congressmen

The Collier's awards for distinguished service in congress to GOP Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan and Democratic Representative Mike Monroney of Oklahoma met with wide approval in the capital. Vandenberg was recognized for his efforts in United Nation's affairs and Monroney for outstanding service as a legislator.

Several chuckles were sandwiched between the Kudos as President Truman made the presentations at the White House, especially when he handed Vandenberg his silver plaque. Thanking the president for "getting out of my way," Vandenberg added: "Lucky for me you aren't still in congress, Harry. I wouldn't have made it if you hadn't moved to the White House."

President Truman reaffirmed to members of the house committee on the minimum wage bill last week that he will not hesitate a moment about vetoing the bill if it comes to him with the inflationary Pace amendment tacked on it.

"Legislation by rider is darned bad public policy," he told Representative George Outland of California. Frank Hook of Michigan and Andy Biemiller of Wisconsin.

The three congressmen had called White House Secretary Dave Niles a day earlier to see if he had any suggestions to help in the fight to keep a minimum wage bill without the crippling Pace rider. That night Outland was called at home and asked to be at the White house next day along with Hook and Biemiller.

They left their presidential conference with a definite assurance that the chief executive wants the original minimum wage bill, without extraneous matter.

"That's the bill we want," Truman told them, "and we're going to keep fighting for it."

The entire conference was in dead earnest, with no pleasanties exchanged.

"If it comes up here with the Pace amendment, I'll simply veto it just like I did the rescission bill a couple of months ago with the rider returning USES (U. S. Employment Service) to the states.

"This business of attaching unrelated riders to bills is no way to legislate—and I won't put my signature on that sort of thing."

75 Cent Club

Congressman Hook, house sponsor of the original minimum wage bill, assured Truman that there was "majority of four" in the house labor committee against the Pace amendment and said he was confident that the house also would reject the amendment when the measure comes to the floor. He reported that a steering committee of 75 house members had been formed to push the bill.

Outland and Biemiller also advised Truman that sentiment was increasing in congress to raise the legal minimum pay standard from the 65 cents an hour base, approved by the senate, to 75 cents.

"Our slogan is '75 for 75,'" they explained, referring to the 75 members on the steering committee and their goal of 75 cents an hour.

"Of course, we still may have some trouble with the rules committee," said Hook. "We are not sure what will happen there, or what kind of a rule they will give us for floor procedure."

Truman laughed at this and said he appreciated their problem.

"No one knows what will happen in that committee," he agreed, "as you probably know, there is a fellow-statesman from Missouri among its members."

He referred to conservative Democrat Roger C. Slaughter of Kansas City and Independence, Missouri, who represents the district adjacent to Truman's and is one of the most anti-administration members of congress.

Note—Congressman Slaughter is being nicknamed the "Ham Fish of the Truman administration," because, like Congressman Hamilton Fish of Roosevelt's home district, he opposes the president on everything.

Chinese 'Liberation' Regime Leaves Formosans Bewildered

Taiwanese Given No Important Posts in Present Administration; Feel U.S. is Partly to Blame

These Japanese soldiers, hopeful of repatriation, exercise along Takao's water front. But Formosans fear these Nips may take their jobs because of Chinese intentions to keep 100,000 Japs in Taiwan for slave labor.

the island of Formosa has been forbidden ground for Occidental eyes. Until her recent "liberation," she had been under Japanese domination for half a century. Harlow M. TAKAO, Formosa, April 15—(NEA)—For the past 51 years, the people of Formosa have awaited liberation from their Japanese oppressors. Now, after they have endured the first six-months of rule by the Chinese government, they regard the merits of "liberation" with mixed feelings.

Not a single Formosan occupies an important post in the Chinese administration of the island. Sixty of Formosa's most prominent citizens are languishing in jail on charges of "collaboration with the Japanese" despite the fact that all

Formosans have been technically

Japanese subjects since the island was ceded to Japan by China following the 1895 treaty of Shimonesoke, a treaty that was sponsored in no small degree by the American government.

Under Japanese rule, all political parties were banned. It came as quite a shock to the Formosans to find that under Chinese rule

they were also forbidden to form political parties or become members of any political organizations

Glen Taylor, one of the best of the new senators, will campaign intensively to try to defeat his colleague, Senator Charles Gossett, in the Idaho primary in June. Both men are Democrats—

Taylor a liberal and Gossett a reactionary.

Handful of Chinese police sent to Formosa, like the one shown above chasing a would-be train passenger from an over-crowded train at Tiaohoku, cannot cope with 'liberation' crime wave. They

other than those sponsored by the central government.

Mass meetings and public gatherings are forbidden. In theory, free speech and a free press are allowed, but it doesn't work out in actual practice. After a newspaper in Kwarenko, capital of Kwarenko, province was closed by Chinese occupation forces because it attacked the government's administration of rice, it became readily apparent to the rest of the islands' newspapers that, the press might be censor free but it wasn't free to censor free.

The Formosans are further confused by the lack of central authority in the island's administration. The civil government, the Chinese army of occupation, the central government police and all the other administrative organizations all operate independently. An order is issued by one agency to be contradicted by another. All vie with one another in the seizure of important Japanese properties. Hundreds of laws and regulations are passed but no organization ever bothers to set

other than those sponsored by the central government.

In the first months of occupation, the Chinese government didn't make any allowances for the barrier of language that separates them from the Formosans.

The Formosans speak Fukinese, a south China dialect that few of the officials know or understand.

Some 65 per cent of the population speak the Japanese they learned during the Nip's 51-year-long occupation. But all official documents and proclamations were printed in Mandarin, the official Chinese government language spoken by central government officials and police who first arrived to administer the island.

Kidnaping Spreads

Only a handful of Chinese police have been sent to the island to take the place of the large, efficient Japanese police force that effectively maintained law and order. And the Chinese seem reluctant to employ native Formosans as police.

The most feared and best organized gang of thugs and bandits are the Roma, Formosan for "Slimy Eels."

The "Elmy Eels" were firmly suppressed by the Japanese during their years of occupation and the Nips maintained a special prison with special methods of punishment for them. Now, in roving bands that cover every province, they keep the local population in abject fear. Many arrests have been made but they haven't resulted in any business for the island's criminal lawyers. The "Slimy Eels" have apparently been able to settle their cases by dealing directly with local authorities.

The government's failure to distribute rice, sugar and coal, with resultant black market prices that have skyrocketed the cost of living, has caused widespread discontent. The Chinese government's avowed intention to keep 100,000 Japanese technicians as slave labor to keep Formosa's industries going has raised a large cry of public resentment.

The Formosans feel that they're technically able to fill most of the jobs and that the use of slave labor will cause mounting unemployment.

The Formosans place no small share of the blame for the present plight on the United States government. They feel that the occupation of Formosa—at least until the formal peace treaty has been signed with Japan—should have been a joint Chinese-American affair with the Formosans left in control of civil government as much as possible.

The American Army and Navy trained thousands of special officers for Formosan administrative posts in anticipation of the invasion of the island that became unnecessary after Japan's surrender. Only one of the thousands trained is actually serving in the island.

Advice Ignored

In August, the U. S. organized an American Army and Navy advisory group to assist the Chinese in administering the island but the Chinese have completely and consistently ignored any advice or suggestions.

Given no authority and furnished no backing by our State Department despite repeated pleas and requests, the advisory group became the Formosan Liaison Group.

Then, after scores more of requests for clarification of authority and a clear definition of its responsibilities in Formosa went unheeded, it degenerated into the Formosan Repatriation Group, an organization of less than 100 men in the entire island whose sole task it is to repatriate the Japanese soldiers and civilians from the island.

Chinese responsiveness to American aid or advice in the governing of the island can best be summed up by the Chinese colonel's answer to an American request.

His reply: "The Americans should be driven into the ocean at the point of Chinese bayonets."

Finally Alan left—not permanently, but merely as if he found the atmosphere unbearable.

When he came in later with Suzy, Ann kissed them both warmly, and said, "Darlings, forgive me for being dopey, will you? It's my delicate condition, you know. I know you'll be very happy, and we'll have a really gorgeous bang-up wedding next summer for you. You'll see—it'll make Port Drake sit up and take notice."

"Did you tell him?" Suzy laughed, and her dimples were delightful. She seemed much plumper, and rounder, though she was still very slender. "He told me," she said reflectively.

"What do you mean?" Ann asked.

"Oh—she's a sweet child and I love you, but there are times when you're a bit annoying. You don't mean to stand there and tell me that you didn't notice it—"

"Notice what?"

"That Julie is you—not the plot, but the character—if ever a living person was committed to paper."

"You're crazy," Ann said flatly.

She read the book over again.

She couldn't see any resemblance—but she hoped that she looked as nice to Colin as his heroine did to her.

Ann asked.

Suzy had reverted to childhood

luctant to employ native Formosans as police.

As a result, a wave of crime and gangsterism has swept the island. Most Formosans fear to leave their homes after dark or leave them unattended during the day. Child kidnaping became so widespread that newspapers pleaded with Formosan mothers not to leave their children alone for a minute lest they be kidnaped and sold into slavery in China.

Social Events

There will be an important meeting of the Ladies Aid at the Elks at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday night at the Elks home.

The April meeting of the Tipton Mothers club was held Thursday afternoon at the public schools in rooms decorated with spring flowers for the occasion.

Forming the receiving line were Mrs. Webster Thomas, Mrs. J. C. Hardy, Mrs. Jake Zulauf, Mrs. Armin Hays, Mrs. Thomas Briscoe and Mrs. W. W. Wisdom.

Mrs. Ira Grubb, the new president, presided over the business session. Mrs. J. L. Thomas was leader of the program, using the topic "Native." The singing group was the "Gardens" and Mrs. A. R. Snorgrass discussed "Trees."

Refreshments were served during the social hour.

The Stephens College Alumnae club met at the home of Mrs. A. B. Beach, 706 South Kentucky avenue Saturday for a dessert luncheon with Miss Margaret Ferguson and Miss Rowena Patterson as assisting hostesses.

The guest speaker of the afternoon Dr. John Decker of the social studies department of Stephens college, was introduced by Mrs. Clarence Carter, who spoke on "Russia and the Far East."

Dr. Becker said that in the Far East the policies of Russia and America cross, so America is especially interested in Russian policies in that part of the world. The speaker said that although Communistic Russia and Capitalistic United States need not agree on many things they can and should learn to cooperate. China, Russia and the United States should get together on the general policies.

The speaker told of the tremendous industrial growth and development in Siberia in the last ten years and how the Russian people have overcome obstacles in that development. The harder a problem is the more eager the people have been to attack it. For example, the speaker said, they have developed wheat that will grow at the 65th parallel, which is considerably farther north than this country has been able to grow wheat.

In the cold area, north of Manchuria, industrialism has increased 1000 per cent in the last ten years. Special premiums have been offered industrial engineers and towns have grown up with schools, movies and other things needed for the growth of a town.

The unusual growth and development of Russia in the last few years means that Russia is a much stronger Russia today and in the future she will be increasingly important in Asia.

Easter Egg Display at Library Loaned by Mrs. E. Frank Wilson

A clever Easter egg display at the pleasure of the children in the Sedalia public library, loaned her family, and generously loaned Third street, delights children as well as other youngsters. They step into the lobby, and has attracted the interest of adult visitors as well.

Exhibited in a glass-enclosed case, the eggs, of varying sizes, present an attractive Easter time picture.

Several large, hand-decorated milk glass eggs bearing the legend, "Easter Greetings," came from Germany and are 100 years old. Also in the collection of simulated eggs, arranged in green nests, are other decorated ones that date back many years.

Various Kinds

A basket centerpiece is filled with blown hen eggs, colorful with original painted designs by Mrs. Wilson. Personality figures also were created by Mrs. Wilson with real eggs—Mr. and Mrs. Bunny Rabbit, Grandma and Grandpa, a clown and a little Miss from nursery rhymes. Placed about them are others with artistic hand-painted patterns. Included in this group that might be used as party favors, is a half-shell decorated nut cup.

A unique, minute figure of a man that fits into a tiny wooden egg about the size of a pecan, completes the seasonal display, which Mrs. Wilson has devised for the engine's OIL-PLATED!"

"This one is . . . and you're 101% right," the car salesman agrees. He goes on to explain, "We want this car to show you real engine endurance—which means the least carbon, sludge, and upkeep you can have. That's goodwill for us. And all it takes to keep your engine's insides OIL-PLATED is Conoco Nth motor oil . . . Say, this time you're figuring to treat your new car right!" . . .

Many of the oldest cars, too, are being kept in the running by having their engines OIL-PLATED. This internal wear-fighter—OIL-PLATING—is created by magnet-like action. That comes from Conoco Nth oil's added ingredient—surfacing your engine's insides with durable OIL-PLATING. There's your barrier against lots of wear. You can have it in any car—any model or year—by driving around to Your Conoco Mileage Merchant's station. You'll get your correct Spring grade of Conoco Nth oil—and an OIL-PLATED engine.
